Child Support Payment Tracker

One row for each child support payment that was due: the due date and amount from your own order, the date and amount actually paid, how it was paid, the confirmation or check number, and where the proof is kept. Use it whether you pay support or receive it. Where payments go through a state child support agency, it keeps a payment history for those payments; this sheet is your own copy to check against it. It does not work out what anyone owes.

How to use it

- One row per due date. Add the row when the payment is due, and fill in the paid columns when a payment is made or arrives.
- Copy the amount due from your own order. If a new order changes the amount, write the date of that order in Notes.
- Enter exactly what was paid, with the date. For a partial payment, enter what arrived. A second payment for the same due date gets its own row with a note.
- Keep the proof: a bank statement, receipt, check image or the agency's payment history. Write exactly where it is kept.
- If payments go through a state agency or payment center, compare this sheet with its payment history from time to time. Questions about a difference, interest or credits go to the agency, the court's self-help center or a licensed attorney where you live.
